Why FOOD SECURITY is at RISK

WHAT: The United Nations (UN) has said that the world faced the risk of widespread famines of "biblical proportions" triggered by the COVID-19 pandemic. Some estimates indicate that the number of hungry people in the world could spike from 135 million to over 250 million.

WHY: According to a report released recently by the Global Network Against Food Crises, at the end of the previous year, around 135 million people in 55 countries and territories experienced acute food insecurity.

'Acute food insecurity' is based on internationally accepted measures of extreme hunger, and occurs when people's inability to consume adequate food puts in immediate danger lives or livelihoods. Besides, 75 million children were stunted while 17 million suffered from wasting in 2019, in the 55 countries covered in the report.

HOW: As the coronavirus crisis accelerates, disruptions in food supply chains within countries are being observed. Labour shortages are starting to affect processors, merchants and companies dealing with logistics and trucking, according to the World Bank. People's ability to buy food and giving compensation to farmers for producing it are being jeopardised due to loss in jobs and incomes.

ONLINE UNIVERSE

Internet safety tips for students

CyberDost, the cyber-safety and cybersecurity awareness handle maintained by the ministry of home affairs, government of India, recently shared internet safety tips for kids. To stay safe when you are online - browsing different websites or playing community video games - follow these tips. It will help in developing critical thinking and ability to make good choices.

- Never share personal information such as your address, phone number, name, personal email address, sibling's details, parent's work details, etc. without the permission of parents.

- Learn about privacy settings on social media platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat, etc.

- Delete request from strangers or any contacts you don't know in person, especially while playing mobile games.

EAT RIGHT

Make sure you introduce a balanced and nutritious diet in your daily meal plans. A balanced breakfast must be non-negotiable. If you are wondering what is a 'balanced breakfast', it must be a mix of carbohydrates, fibre, protein, vitamins and minerals. These can be found in many foods and one can pick different breakfast foods namely grains, fruits/ vegetables and dairy. A bowl of ready-to-eat breakfast cereal made with whole grain; a glass of milk or a bowl of yoghurt and sliced fruits or dry fruits/nuts work just as well. As long as you are getting a wholesome balanced breakfast, you are energised to start a long day.

INCULCATE DISCIPLINE

Do not forget to chart out a plan that will help you stay accountable to your goals and help you reignite and re-energise yourself whenever you slack off. Ensure you continue with all the good habits, practices and routines that you inculcate during this phase to 'create a bigger, better, future'.

GET MOVING

Besides diet, physical activity and exercise are also important. Exercise can help improve your physical health and could even add years to your life. That is not the only reason why people exercise. Research has shown that regular exercise helps relieve stress, improves mood, reduces dissatisfaction with life and improves the quality of life. Exercise reduces levels of the body's stress hormones, such as adrenaline and cortisol.

Use the lockdown to build healthy habits

EMOTIONAL WELL-BEING

They say, "a family which eats together, stays together." Eating meals together is one aspect of family life that demonstrates benefits to young people. Eating meals as a family has benefits for young people beyond their general sense of connection to family members. Research has shown that family meals offer routine and consistency and provide an opportunity to socialise children and teach them about communication skills, manners, nutrition, and good eating habits.

Home Experiment: THE BURPING BAG

Texas science teacher Avri DiPietro is winning accolades for teaching her students a cool home experiment known as "the burping bag." The assignment calls for one to combine vinegar and baking soda in a plastic bag, either in the kitchen or backyard. If all goes as planned, burps and belches will ring out across your home as the acidic vinegar meets the sodium bicarbonate, releasing gas from the bag. This chemical reaction between the baking soda and the vinegar creates a gas called carbon dioxide.

MORE EXPERIMENTS TO TRY:

1. Try the 'Walking Water' experiment with strips of paper towels, food colouring, drinking water and cups. The experiment will help you understand capillary motion - a phenomena that allows liquid flow upward in narrow areas.
2. Try the 'Cloud In A Jar' experiment with shaving cream, H2O (water) and food colouring. The experiment demonstrates precipitation and evaporation.

TAKE A VIRTUAL VACATION

Virtual vacations can encourage curiosity, teach you about other parts of the world, and help you feel less trapped at home. It can give your family an outlet for their wanderlust and even let you test-drive travel plans. You could also learn new things in preparation, for example ordering lunch from a menu in Spanish; build London's Big Ben from cardboard to understand its importance; or make Mickey Mouse waffles and throw a kitchen parade as a substitute for the one in Magic Kingdom.

Wisdom Online

When the world shut itself down and went into a tailspin, the emerging challenges included the maintenance of a semblance of normalcy in the pedagogical activities. We rose to the challenge, only to face newer hurdles on the way. Acquisition of the technical skills mandatory for production and uploading of the sessions was not easy for the faculty. Salutations are due to our faculty for achieving this with remarkable alacrity. Once the classes began, we had to depend on the mobile phone network which at the best of times is infamous for its inconsistency. The patience and dedication of our students saw us through. The prolonged confinement of spirited youngsters had brewed depression in some of our wards, compelling us to undertake extra efforts to make the sessions more interesting. In the absence of the physical ambience of the school that we have become so used to, it was challenging to maintain the high level of motivation required for continuation of the endeavours. AN OPPORTUNITY TO EXPLORE OUR TALENT

Among COVID-19 outbreak, we students are having a tough time. Now, we are all waiting for schools to reopen. We are all bored but we could be productive during this quarantine period as it can be considered as a time in which we can work on concepts of previous session and prepare for our next session. We can also use various e-learning platforms like byjus, vedantu, extramarks which are giving free access to students during lockdown period. This is also an opportunity where we can explore our talent for which we don't get time in our daily life using social media platform. Gautam Bhargava, class XI, St Xavier's School, Nevta, Jaipur

THE BENEVOLENT MUSIC

Music, itself, is a commonality for the mankind. Music draws everyone to the force where all the thing is considered equal, sober and serene. The one who knows and understands music, is sure about the way it brings all together. It doesn't matter how this music is produced but every instrument has the same way of commonality. I consider flute music to be the most universal and most particular of all music. There is no culture that does not have its flute. The Japanese have their Shakuhachi, the Indians have the bansuri, the South Americans have the breathy flute and the Chinese have the high-pitched flutes. Each kind of flute has a specific fingering and compass and weaves its own associations. To hear any flute, is to be drawn into the commonality. MY FAVOURITE BOOK

My favourite book is 'Matilda' by Roald Dahl. I got it on my 6th birthday and my joy knew no bounds. When I first read that book. I thought the book is quite boring because the cover looked boring (because back then I was little) but now I quite understand that we should 'never judge a book by its cover'. This book is about a wise and intelligent girl who faces obstacles as she unlocks surprises. She knows the perfect way to handle situations. Matilda is my favourite character. This is so because I like her attitude and wit. I don't want to tell more about this book otherwise what's the suspense left in it for you? Ria Singh, class VI, Saint Joseph school, Chandigarh

UTILISE THE TIME AT HAND

A message made me change my views on the 21 days lockdown. It was - "An opportunity is like a biscuit dipped in a cup of tea a little delay and it's gone." The energy and hope this quote brought to me cannot be expressed with words. I realised that the only way to stay calm and peaceful during this long lockdown was to improve my mental and physical strength. When I talked to some of my friends, they told me that they will turn mad before this lockdown ends. I knew that the only way to improve my mental strength was to stay engaged and the way to do that was to explore and learn new things.
